

History of Social Groups In North Omaha

Loves Jazz & Arts Center (LJAC) in collaboration with Metro Community College is embarking on an exciting and very important endeavor to chronicle and document early social groups in the African American community in Omaha. LJAC will be curating an exhibition as well as creating a documentary examining the role of these groups and how they affected civil society in the African American community in the 20th century.

To this end LJAC is seeking oral histories, photographs, uniforms, and other relevant information pertaining to this important time period. If you have any information that you would like to share with the center please contact Neville Murray @ (402) 502-5291
